Young Lady in a Scrars—Hoops and High Heels in Chunch.—The Richmond Whig says: A few Sundays ago, a modest young gentleman of our acquaintance attended the morning ser-vice, in one of our fashionable churches. He was kindly shown into a luxuriantly cushioned pew, and had hardly settled himself, and taken an observation of his neighbors, before a beauan observation of his neighbors, before a beau-tiful young lady entered, and, with a graceful wave of the hand preventing our friend from rising to give her place, quietly sunk into a seat near the end. When a hymn was given out, she skilfully found the page, and, with a sweet smile that set his heart a thumping, handed her neighbor the book. The minister raised his hands in prayer, and the fair girl raised his hands in prayer, and the fair girl knelt, and, in this posture, perplexed her friend to know which most to admire, her beauty or her devoutness. Presently, the prayer was concluded, and the congregation resumed their seats. Our friend respectfully raised his eyes from the fair form he had been so earnestly scanning, lest, when she looked up, she would deteet him staring at her. After a couple of seconds, he darted a furtive glance at his charmer, and was astonished to see her still on her er, and was astonished to see her still on her knees; he looked closely, and saw that she was much affected, trembling in violent agitation, no doubt from the eloquent power of the preacher. Deeply sympathizing, he watched her closely.

Her emotion became more violent; reaching her hand behind her, she would convulsively grasp her elothing, and strain, as it were, to rend the brilliant fabric of her dress. The sight was exceedingly painful to behold, but he still gazed, like one entranced, with wonder and astonishment. After a minute, the lady raised astonishment. After a minute, the lady raised her face, heretofore concealed in the cushion, and, with her hand, made an unmistakable beckon to our friend. He quickly moved along the pew toward her, and inclined his ear, as she evidently wished to say something.

"Please help me, sir," she whispered; "my dress has caught, and I can't get up."

A brief examination revealed the cause of the difficulty. The fair girl wore fashionable, high-heeled shoes; kneeling on both knees, these heels of course struck out at right angles, and, in this position, the highest hoop of her newfangled skirt caught over them, and thus rendered it impossible for her to raise herself or straighten her limbs. The more she struggled, the tighter was she bound; so she was constrained to call for help. This was immediately, if not scientifically, rendered; and, when the next prayer was made, she merely inclined herself upon the back of the front pew—thinking, self upon the back of the front pew-thinking, no doubt, that she was not in praying costume.

A CAPITAL TRICK THAT ENDED WELL.—
A young man (a brother to "Sly Boots," per haps, for, like her, he enjoyed a good joke) was studying in college. One afternoon he walked out with one of his instructors, and they chanced out with one of his instructors, and they chanced to see an old pair of shoes lying by the side of the road, which appeared to lelong to a poor man at work close by. "Let us have a little amusement at his expense," said the student. "Suppose we hide these shoes, and conceal ourselves in the bushes to watch his perplexity when he cannot find them." "I can think of a better trick than that," said the instructor. "You are rich, and suppose you put a silver dollar in the toe of each shoe, and then we will hide," The young man did so. The poor man finished his work soon, and went to put on his shoes. You can imagine his surprise, when finished his work soon, and went to put on his shoes. You can imagine his surprise, when he stooped down to take out a pebble, as he supposed, from the toe, and found it to be a hard dollar, and then his absolute perplexity and astonishment, when he found still another in the other shoe. His feelings overcame him; he fell upon his knees, looked up to heaven, and uttered aloud a fervent thanksgiving, in which he thanked a kind Providence for sending some unknown hand to save from perishing ing some unknown hand to save from perishing his sick and helpless wife, and his children with out bread. Do you wonder that the young man stood in his hiding place deeply affected, and his eyes filled with tears. Young friends, and you Miss "Sly Boots," when you want to enjoy real fun, real pleasure at witnessing the perplexity of others, s e if you cannot in some way imitate the student. Such tricks are worth

THE CHARLESTON RAFT -Our Charleston correspondent has furnished us with frequent ts of the great raft which is now ing for the attack on Fort Sumter. It is to ing for the attack on Fort Sumter. It is to bear heavy cannon, its artillerymen are to be sheltered by cotton bags, and its perpendicular sides are to be covered with iron plates. It is to be shoved ahead by a steambout, and when it gets under the walls, a scaling party is to mount them on ladders, and the thing is done. Perhaps! Some military men entersie the centure however, that it will never. tain the opinion, however, that it will prove floating sarcophagus, and certainly, if history is any teacher, or experience any guide, we may predict for this scheme the same fate which be-fel the batteries and rafts which were employed at the siege of Gibraltar in 1781.

A French engineer, the Chevalier D'Arcon. invented batteries with which he was certain he could capture the rock. Ships were cut down and walled with timber, huge rafts were made of the same solidity, indestructible by fire, lined with sand and cork, and so arranged as to be kept constantly wet. Roofs and sides were to throw off the glancing shot, and the lat-ter, mounted with heavy cannon, were relied upon by the assailants. After some hours firing, however, a raft on which the Prince of Nassau was stationed took fire, and the Frence of Nassau was stationed took fire, and the French engineer, who was on board, perceived that his huge and unwieldly machine, covered "with bull-hides, cow-hides, and ox-hides," began to smoke, and soon after the whole fleet and flotilla, rafts and batteries, were burned or knocked to pieces. The rafts could not be moved from their places, and became the graveyard of their Such will be the fate of the Charleston raft as soon as it is towed, if it can be, within range of the hot shot of Fort Sumter. large an object, every shot will tell .- Cor. A NOBLE REPLY.-It is related of the cele brated John Howe, chaplain of Cromwell, that being often applied to for protection by men of all parties, in those eventful times, he never refused assistance to any worthy person, whatev his religious views; until one day Cromwell said to him, "Mr. Howe, you have asked favors for everybody except yourself; pray, when does your turn come?" PROSPECTUS OF THE WEEKLY NATIONAL BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD,

WARRINGTON, D. C., December, 1860.

WARRINOTON, D. C., December, 1800.

The undersigned have commenced the publication, in this city, of a weekly newspaper, called the National Republican.

It is printed on a large sheet, 27 by 42 inches, and is furnished at the low prices stated below. It will contain all the original matter of the daily National Republican, with the exception of local news not interesting to country subscribers. It will give full reports of the proceedings of Congress, and of the other departments of the National Government.

It will contain all the news of the day, foreign and domestic, markets, &c., &c., as well as an original correspondence from all parts of the country. The miscellaneous department will receive special attention, and, in all respects, the effort will be made to establish the character of the National Republican as a

PANILY NEWSPAPER.

In politics, the paper will be Republican, sustaining the incoming Administration of Mr. Lin coln, but disclaiming, however, any pretension to be the organ of the President elect.

There is no other Republican paper in the District of Columbia, or in the vicinity of it, and it is believed that recent events have opened to such a paper an important sphere of useful effort. The time has come, when the actual administration of the Government upon Republican principles will explode the misrepresentations which have made those principles so distasteful to the South.

to the South.

But it is not only here, and in this vicinity, that the projectors of the National Republican hope to make it useful. To the whole country they offer a journal which will discuss national politics from a national standpoint, and which will never be swarved from patriotic duty by any overpowering pressure of local interest.
